DOT, HUD, and EPA Programs for Sustainable Communities

In the April 2010 a publication titled “Leveraging the Partnership” was issued by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), The U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT), and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The guide provides many of the federal programs that are directly related to the principles of the “Partnership for Sustainable Communities”.

The guide does not list all of the funding and technical assistance programs from these agencies; however, it does bring together key programs that are connected to promote livable and sustainable communities.

The following link will bring you to listing of these programs.
